

WE NOMINATE

The largest and probably most diverse group ever to appear on Town Topics' front page—the 1000-plus volunteers, drawn from all segments of the Princeton Community and representing all shades of opinion, who have banded together to raise the $234,000 that will enable the 18 units within the Princeton United Community Fund to continue, and strengthen, their services. Presenting a target which the founders of the Community Chest would have been unable to envision in 1938, the fall Princeton first welcomed the one-for-all appeal, this year's effort dramatizes the development of the Greater Princeton Area and underscores the needs of health, youth and family agencies that have been stretched almost to the breaking-point.

While it is too early to predict whether or not the United Fund will succeed in reaching its objective, five per cent above last year's goal and a figure carefully scrutinized by the Citizens' Budget Panel Conference, it is becoming increasingly apparent that the current campaign is the most far-reaching in Princeton's history—and certainly the most thoughtfully planned since Princeton Town persuaded the College of New Jersey to break ground here for Nassau Hall in the 1750's. Under the leadership of 45-year old Fred M. Blaicher, able and aggressive president of the Princeton Municipal Improvement Association, The Fund has turned its back on tradition and has sought to adapt its organization to the phenomenon of growth.

For instance, the customary "business division," comprising some 80 retail outlets in the Borough and Township, no longer constitutes an unploughed furrow and is producing results commensurate with budgetary expectations. Indicative of the aroused enthusiasm is one long-established Nassau Street firm that has successfully resisted pressures in the past but this month is encouraging, and matching, employee contributions.

As Township, Borough and the contiguous municipalities attempt to meld brand-new, and recently established, research and industrial organizations, Robert P. Popino, 39-year old manager of the American Cyanamid Company's Agricultural Center Services, and his associates, have been broadening participation in The Fund by enlisting the interest of firms threaded along what realtors now call "Research Row." No less than 36 companies are included in this category and, with a handful of exceptions such as pioneering RCA, the majority of three corporate contributors have been using a Princeton date-line for less than a decade.

The most meaningful aspect of this community enterprise—aside from the Neighborhood Division charged with the exhausting house-to-house canvass of 16 major residential areas—is the upcoming Second Annual United Festival of Song, scheduled for McCarter Theater next Monday and Tuesday evenings. A dozen different groups, ranging in size from the University's Nassoons and Tigertones to the Princeton Theological Seminary and Westminster Choirs, will combine forces in presenting a program which will suggest the scope of an undertaking predicated upon the philosophy that "everybody benefits because everybody cares."

For understanding that "community ideals can become realities through hard work"; for insisting that vital health, recreation, family and child care services must be assured; for working for an even stronger Princeton; these volunteers are our nominees for Princeton's

THE CHANGING SCENE

College Road to Go South. To the driver behind the wheel, a private road doesn't look much different from a public road, but its status on the map is quite different.

Princeton drivers learned this week that the University plans next year to move part of its College Road south to a new location closer to Lake Carnegie. This will make room for the southward march of University buildings and provide access to the new junior faculty apartments now abuilding by the lake.

The shift will erase the part of College Road that now starts at Guyot Hall and runs west to the sharp bend near the present tennis courts and it will make a "cut" out of the present intersection of College and Washington Road. The road east from Washington will remain as is.

The exact alignment has not yet been determined. University officials told the Township Planning Board Monday night. However, the road will cut in from

FIRM SIGN: Mercer Street's speed limit will remain 25 m.p.h. Mayor Male reports, despite State's bid to go higher. (See page 32.)

Washington near the present boat house and go cross-country to an intersection with Alexander Street, probably between Rosedale Mills and the John Osh Garden Market (picture, page 3.) Although the University did not pin-point its route, it has begun negotiations with William Bornman, owner of the Rosedale property, for a 50-foot right of way between the Mills and the nursery.

The question of how the new road will cross the Pennsylvania railroad tracks is also still pending. It will either have to go over them or under them, or, possibly as a grade crossing between automatically-controlled gates.

Because the new junior faculty units will be ready for occupancy in late summer, the University hopes to have its new College Road ready by then, too, to provide junior tenants with an access to their apartments from Washington Road.

The Planning Board also heard on Monday night the University's program for developing another part of the Gray Farm on the north shore of Lake Carnegie between Harrison Street and Longview Drive.

Plans call for 48 houses backing up against the lots on Longview and fanning out around a new street called Maclean Circle and a continuation of Hartley Avenue. Maclean Circle—whose name may be changed to avoid conflict with Maclean Street in the Borough—lies east of McCosh Circle from which it will be separated by a bedgerow and the present cooperative swimming pool.

Questions of curbs and sidewalks have yet to be settled. McCosh Circle has only minimal curbs but since it was built, the Township's policy on curbs and sidewalks has been changed, so that Maclean will probably end up curbed and widened.

CANTEEN DEBATE SETTLED? Board Agrees. The Borough Board of Education has agreed to make the Nassau Street School available to the Teen Canteen. Members danced at the school on Saturday night and will hold dances there every Saturday hereafter, following the acceptance by the Board of Education of a strengthened code drawn up by the Adult Sponsors of the Princeton Teen-Canteen.

Reaching agreement after only 20 minutes of discussion, the two Boards accepted six new-revised Canteen rules as the basis for continued Canteen dances in Borough schools. According to these six rules, the Canteen agrees to:

- Issue new membership cards each year, a different color each time, to insure that no average members can continue after the specified period of eligible membership. (High school, plus one year after graduation).

- Request the co-operation of parents who sign the application blanks, thereby assuring the Canteen of a larger supply of chaperones than it has had in the past.

● Refuse to admit guests for the next few weeks until all members have been re-enrolled. Thereafter, guests are to be supervised to make sure that all of them meet canteen requirements.

● Instruct chaperones and police so that they will know exactly what is expected of them at a canteen function.

Encourage the teen-agers to set a high standard in dress and deportment, especially on the dance floor.

To acquaint the community with the Canteen, its Adult Sponsors Board will shortly announce the date and place of an open, public meeting at which questions can be asked and, hopefully, community interest strengthened.

Members of the two boards agreed, at their Thursday meeting, that there has been evidence within the past two weeks, of wide community interest and support for building a bigger and better Teen Canteen, but that many people do not know how the canteen operates, who sponsors it, how long it has been in existence, and so on.

It was also agreed at this meeting that stronger liaison is needed between the Board of Education and the organizations whose representatives are on the Board of Adult Sponsors. The "how" of this liaison is, however, still to be determined.

Arthur Salter, 76, 126 Witherspoon Street, was the victim of the so-called "pigeon drop" game last month, parting with this sum in the false hope of sharing in a larger amount offered him by four strangers. This week in Washington, Mr. Bianco, who was a witness to the film-drama game while Mr. Salter was obtaining a cashier's check from his savings account, told police there was no doubt they had the right pair.

ROUND-UP

Temperature variations of better than 30 degrees were common last week, with pre-dawn readings as low as 43 and mid-afternoon figures reaching 74—not far from the all-time high for mid-October.

...despite long-range predictions for a wet month, rainfall is currently running well below normal, with a mere .06 recorded against an average of nearly two inches for the first half of the month.

A loss in excess of $500 was reported to Borough Police by Dr. John B. Greenman, 1500 Lane. His car was riddled while in a Palmer Square parking yard, the loss including a medical bag valued at $400 and a $100 top coat...considerably luckier was Charles A. Phillips, Princeton University junior, who lost a check made out to his name and already endorsed, worth $163. It was found on Washington Road by Patrolman Charles D. Harris and returned.

Princeton Township reports a marked decrease in the number of dogs inoculated for rabies this fall...the total of 481 is less than half the number "shot" year ago in half the time...inasmuch as certificates proving inoculation are necessary for license renewals, Township health officials estimate more owners are having the job done privately.

John Lee Jr., 39, 288 Witherspoon Street, is in Princeton Hospital with injuries sustained when his car struck a tree on Herndon Road Sunday afternoon about 3:30. Mr. Lee has lacerations, bruises and a concussion.

Ten Years Ago: TOWN TOPICS, October 12, 1950: More than 2100 tickets were issued during the first four weeks of parking meter operations (a figure better than double the current rate in a far more populous community)...renewal of the Civil Defense Council, headed by Col. F. J. Darke, was prompted by the deteriorating international situation, specifically in Korea, where fighting had gone into its fourth month...first casualty from the Princeton area was Pfc. Willie J. Williams, a U.S. Marine who lived on Mount's Farm, Brunswick Pike, and was killed in action.

The Princeton Eagles, an independent football team, was organized by Ben Kahn, hooked the Somerset Rams as its first opponent...on the 20-man squad were Ralph Procaccino, Sam Nini and Mike Boccanfuso, ends; Lou Balestrieri, Sol Balestrieri, Dan Del Vecchio, Jake Battistini and Joe Rauch, tackles; Dick Embury, John Rockefeller, Tom McCloskey and Joe Hill, guards; Mike Lisi and Leonard DiDonato, centers; Al Pyrono, Jack Petrone, Tim Harris, Frank Boccanfuso, Frank Cuomo, Ray Newhouse and Frank Cravetto, backs.

"IN MY OPINION..."

Candidate Issue Statements. Questions of traffic, administration and parking were aired this week by the various candidates running for Borough Council and Township Committee.

"We are going backward instead of forward in the matter of parking," commented Angus Austin, Republican candidate for Borough Council, "with no new areas added in the past three years. It is a fact that the traffic count on Nassau Street is greater now than that on Route One and long-range goals for improving the situation have been in the planning stage too long."

Mr. Austin expressed the opinion that property values would be eventually suffered as the traffic load increased because Nassau Street business firms would lose accessibility.

Democratic candidates for Borough Council, Gordon Waldron and Robert van de Velde, have issued a statement upholding the present Borough financial policy. "The present administration has managed to maintain a low tax rate and still give Princeton the present level of administration," stated Mr. van de Velde. "Money that used to lie idle is being soundly invested and brings in added income," Mr. Waldron said. "Purchases and service contracts are now put out to bid instead of being awarded on a noncompetitive basis. This, and other innovations, have enabled the Borough to make needed improvements and raise Borough salaries without unbalancing the budget."

Township candidates on the Democratic ticket, Richard Frost and Stephen Miller, accused the Republican majority on Township Committee of being "procrustean" who are bogged down in administrative detail of their own making." The candidates cited the recent sidewalk report and asked the Committee act on its recommendations.

Republican candidates in the Township, incumbent Mayor R. Kenneth Fairman and Maurice F. Healy Jr., have presented a plan for the reorganization of administrative procedure in the municipality. The steps they outline would, they state, strengthen the permanent Township administration through the delegation of authority and responsibility.

"Reorganization would permit Township Committee to devote more of its energies to vital policy matters and enable it to spend the necessary time on the all-important consideration of long range financial planning," the candidates believe.

They propose to designate the Township clerk as Chief Administrative Officer, relieve him of many bookkeeping and clerical duties and assign to him the job of interdepartmental cooperation and staff work for the Committee. The two candidates believe that such an administrative officer, working with department heads, could make day-to-day operating decisions which would speed up Township business.

U. N. CELEBRATION SET
For Week of October 22. Among the many activities planned in connection with U.N. Week (October 22-30) are poster and essay contests for school children, a teen-age rally and UNICEF collection, and a United Nations workshop on Saturday, October 22.

Over 125 Groups Involved. School children in Princeton Borough and Township, and West Windsor and Montgomery Townships, will participate in two contests through the YMCA. Trophies will be awarded to winners in the poster contest, sponsored by the Y Men's Club. "The U.N. as a Force for World Peace" is the subject for the 300-word essay contest, open to 7th and 8th grade students.

UNICEF will be the theme for the youth rally, scheduled for Sunday, October 23. Participating groups include the Church Youth Council, American Field Service, Marine Girl Scouts, Teen Cantone, Y-Teens and YMCA. Senora Clara Ponce de Leon, member of the Colombian mission to the U. N. and two of her children will be guests of honor. A film on UNICEF will be shown.

On Saturday, October 29, the group will conduct a door-to-door drive for UNICEF, beginning at 6:45 p.m. Many will be dressed in national costume. Following the drive, a dance will be held at the Nassau Street School. WFBP will announce the results of the drive that evening.

spection can be carried out by volunteers. Mayor Raymond F. Male had suggested that a paid inspector might relieve volunteers of the continuing burden of inspection.

Councilman Dan D. Coyle reported that 24 men took the state police examination on Friday, to fill two vacancies on the police force. Mr. Coyle said the Council will be able to make the two appointments at its agenda meeting, Monday, October 31.

Mr. Coyle also went on record as opposing a resolution passed by the Council on September 26. This resolution stated that Council favored deferring action to when Harrison Street Bridge in order to devote its energies to "an all-out political offensive" to get action on the proposed 26-A bypass.

Mr. Coyle, who was absent for the September 26 meeting, called the resolution "short-sighted" and said that it "Minimizes component parts of an overall plan." Other Council members expressed views that simultaneous actions on Harrison Street Bridge and the 26-A bypass would be mutually self-defeating.

Mayor Male's ad recent conversion had led him to realize that he was mistaken in thinking originally that they was virtually united support for de-

A week or more of the finest fall weather in memory has been ruling the hills and dales with a golden hand, and there is more in store. Early mornings remained chill, but the thermometer took daily aim at the pleasant 70's.

READING PERIODS PLANNED

For University Students. In a precedent-making decision, the faculty of Princeton University has recommended to the trustees that two reading periods be included in the academic year. Ranging from seven to 14 days, the periods would precede examinations in January and May, beginning in May 1961.

Announcement of the proposal was made by Dean Jeremiah S. Finch, dean of the College and vice-chairman of the Committee on the Course of Study of the University Faculty. A special faculty meeting approved earlier this month the "additional and tollate emphasis on independent work, embracing all departments and divisions of the University on both the graduate and undergraduate levels, and representing nearly a year of study on the part of the Faculty Committee."

Challenging Goals Sought. The reading periods are designed to encourage students to meet more challenging academic goals, free of class obligations. Dean Finch emphasized the capacity of Princeton students "who are often hungry for opportunities to go beyond routine assignments, and are anxious to show they mean business in their fields of academic concentration."

"The reading periods are closely related to, and will strengthen, such recent curricular changes as advanced placement of freshmen, and the option of departmental concentration for sophomores," he added, "and further implement the longstanding requirement of independent work in a department in the junior and senior years, culminating in the writing of a senior thesis."

The committee on the Course of Study includes President Robert F. Goheen, chairman; Dean Finch; Dean J. Douglas Brown, dean of the faculty; Prof. Philip H. Ashby, department of religion; Prof. Carlos H. Baker, Woodrow Wilson Professor of Literature; Prof. Charles C. Gillespie, professor of history of science; Prof. E. IT'S ALL FOR CHILDREN Pennywhistle Players. A new musical theatre for children. The Pennywhistle Players, will give a pre-New York performance this Saturday at 10:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. in Murray Theatre on the University campus.

"A Little Bit of Magic" on Saturday morning will tell the story of a princess, a court wizard and a doctor who makes the sick princess well with a little bit of magic. In "The Wonderful Wheel," to be given Saturday afternoon, children will see how a Neanderthal family and their pet dinosaur, Lou, cope with a "terrible toger" who is stealing all their food.

The Pennywhistle Players started from an idea that germinated last spring among a group of seniors at Mount Holyoke, who felt that a children's theatre offered opportunities for young actors and for children that had not been sufficiently explored.
Barbara Dilley, one of the seniors and Ted D'Arms, a Princeton student (both Princeton residents) were prime movers in the group. Eight other young people are members of the Players.

Pennywhistle members concentrate on building a strong actor-audience relationship, which they believe makes the theater a richer experience for young children.
They produce original scripts or adaptations from within their own circle of talents. Miss Dilley is studying dance in New York and Mr. D'Arms has just completed a season with Shakespeare in the Park. He is a student at Uta Hagen's.

The plays will be given at the

"RIGHT YOU ARE"

Is next at McCarte, Pirandello's "parable," "Right You Are," in English translation by Arthur Livingston, will open this Thursday as the second production in the regular McCarte Theatre series, "Comedy in the Theatre."
It will run, with a Saturday matinee, through Saturday night.

Stephen Porter, director of the prize-winning off-Broadway production of "The Misanthrope," will direct the Pirandello work.
Joanne Roos, Joanna Meril, Donald Moffat and Thayer David will be seen in leading roles.

In "Right You Are," Pirandello plays with his favorite theme, illusion and reality. The story outlines the adventures of three mysterious strangers who arrive in an Italian provincial town, and explores the attempts of the townspeople to discover the truth about the visitors.

Following "Right You Are," McCarte will present a revival of George M. Cohan's "The Tavern," a hit of 1920. Subscriptions for the remaining plays in the comedy series may still be obtained from the McCarte box-office.

Since the Kennedy-Nixon debate will not be over until 8:30 this Thursday, the opening night curtain for "Right You Are" will be held until 8:45.

THE HAT DROPS

Flanders and Swann to appear.
The after-dinner farrow, "At the Drop of a Hat," will come to McCarte Theatre on Tuesday, October 25, as one of the season's special attractions, sandwiched in between plays, films and concerts.

Michael Flanders and Donald Swann, arriving in Princeton after successful runs of two years in London and two in New York, are familiar to hearth-side listeners as well as to theatre-goers, through the recordings they have made of their two-man revue.

The collaboration of the pair began at London's Westminster School continued at Christ Church College, Oxford, and was then interrupted by the war. On returning to civilian life, the pair wrote many successful numbers for London revues, and finally decided to perform on their own in public.

curious label, "Will Rogers with Fangs" will bring himself and his label to Dillon Gymnasium this Saturday at 8:30 with the backing of the Princeton Entertainment Bureau. Tickets are available from the Bureau, Box 591, Princeton, or from the University Store.

Sahl, who dispenses his political satire from the platform with a grey sweater on his back and a newspaper under his arm, has often said, "I don't tell jokes, I give little lectures." Discussing his talents, "The New Yorker" magazine commented, "Some of the lectures, little as they are, contain as much meat as most orations." Sahl has said, "My Princeton 'oration' will be one of my major ones."

The satirist, who was featured by both Republican and Democratic conventions as a news analyst, picks balloons wherever he finds them. He has said, "The choice for President is between the lesser of two evils—some people claim Nixon is trying to sell the country, and Kennedy is trying to buy it."

"LADY'S NOT FOR BURNING"
 At McCarter, With Christopher Fry's comedy "The Lady's Not for Burning," the resident acting company at McCarter Theatre missed the mark they hit so squarely and splendidly with the two opening plays, "Man and Superman" and "Anatoli."

The fault lay, not in the production itself which Richard Easton had directed carefully and with attention to detail, but in the failure of the two leading characters to project the wit and the wit and the wit of Fry's incomparably dazzling lyrics. Without this production, the play can-net rise from the ground and the AFA offering at McCarter did indeed remain distressingly earth-bound throughout much of the evening.

In "The Lady's Not for Burning," Fry presents us with a bewitchingly beautiful young woman who is about to be burned as a witch because, among other things, she is the daughter of an alchemist, she speaks French to her poodle and she dines with her pet peacock. She believes in the human mind, and loves life too well to lose it to a stake.

In counterpoint to her is a misanthropic officer who has been through the wars and has seen so much of life that all he wants is death. He has invented a murder or two in order to get himself hanged, but he has as much trouble proving guilt as the lady has in proving innocence.

Jack Dodson and Eve Roberts played the two roles. Mr. Dodson, in his reading of the lines, missed the wry and witty despair of Fry's hero and presented instead a merely lugubrious fellow who didn't seem quite right in the head.

Fry has drawn for us a "witch" who is a magnetic and beautiful young woman. One young man trails after her on first sight like a sleep-walker and a few hours later offers to free her if she will sleep with him; a second youth dances after her in the wake of the first, the mayor of the town finds himself alarmingly attracted to her and the hero falls in love with her in half a day, and, yet, watching and listening to Miss Roberts, one could not help but shrug and wonder "why?"

Lesser Roles Better. Secondary roles were played in this Association of Producing Artists' production with more skill and skill. Margaret Stevenson was delicious as the mother of two preposterous young men, and the young men themselves, played by Nicholas Martin and Edward Grover, were properly madcap. Helen Marie Taylor is an exquisitely beautiful blonde who brought to the role of Alton a translucent sweetness which illumined every scene in which she appeared, and Tucker Ashworth as an orphan in the mayor's household was a sturdy young man who did not let his sobriety get in the way of Fry's wit.

For this production, Hugh Hardy designed a set which projected about six feet top over the orchestra pit, and what he gained in space and maneuverability factors made their entrances and exits occasionally from a flight of steps leading into the pit) he lost, to a certain degree, in fitful—Continued on Page 8

IT'S NEW To Us

GENDER: MALE

New Gift Shop Opens. It isn't often that you can drag a man into a gift shop, even one that isn't spelled "shoppe," but women have been known to enter gift shops to buy things for their men, and with these kindhearted women in mind, Sam McDowell has opened "The Country Mouse," a gift shop with a lot of appeal for men, or for the women who shop for them.

The shop has been decorated, to begin with, like a comfortable country store, but not so much like one that you feel uncomfortable in. There's a walnut table and bench, captains chairs and block-out alcoves sustained by old-fashioned painted porch posts. Lanterns in glowing brass or blocks of colored glass shine against the walls.

There's a nickelodeon in one corner, an old-fashioned roasting oven in another (really roasts chestnuts, too) a robust nickel-plated cash register that you can buy by cranking a handle and old glass candy case to hold jewelry.

And there are, of course, gifts, many of them collected with the men in mind. Look, for example, at a solid pair of American eagle bookends, each eagle mounted on a globe, each "end" about 10 inches high.

A matching lamp has the eagle mounted on a square block of walnut. Another lamp is an old fire toilet in glass and red. A small blinking red light catches the eye on a double take, but does not interfere with the main business of the lamp which is to provide light under a burlap shade.

Some of the handsomest lamp bases are those carved by Mr. McDowell himself from old beams. These are decoy bases, the ducks sanded down to smooth, clean lines, then stained and painted in shadowy blues and brown. (Mr. McDowell, by the way, is an art teacher at Princeton High and most of the art and decoration in his shop come from his hands.)

Under his candy case glass, he displays Cini silver jewelry, worked into wedding-bell earrings, Zodiac charms or bracelet charms like the three-inch skeleton, complete to the last fibula.

An old-fashioned European style teapot—like the kind they used to call "French"—would be delightful in a provincial room. Country Mouse has them in black or white with gold trim.

Perhaps the most impressive piece in the shop is a hand-carved cheese set whose medieval figures are so lovingly carved that each twist of the Queens braid stands out and the scowl on the knight's brow is as dark and sharp as it would be in life. Even if you don't play, you will cherish this set for the beauty of its figures and will want to display it as you would a piece of sculpture.

But if you don't collect cheese sets, you could buy the hand-carved golden eagle ship's figure head two and a half feet long to hang over your — well, to put in a study or the framed fabric figures of Revolutionary War officers done in trapunto against a documentary background.

In keeping with its name and status, The Country Mouse will also sell cheese. All kinds. No traps.

NOW HEAR THIS

Audio Lab Invites You. On the side wall at Audio Labs at 196 Nassau in the Thompson Building, there is a thing like a telephone switch board. Using the plugs attached to this board, the shop's attendant can switch instantaneously from one speaker to another—stereo or mono—from one tuner to another or from one amplifier to another. (There are 24 different switches that can be made, but not all of them will be hooked up at any one time.)

The purpose of this arrangement is to give the shopper, sitting in Audio Lab's comfortable chairs, an opportunity to hear one component right after another in order to compare sounds in the most effective way.

Another way to compare, of course, is to take advantage of the printed signs all around the shop: "You are invited to handle all the equipment in this store."

Audio Lab will bring in any brand you want to hear which isn't in the shop, but with KLM, Wharfedale, Acoustics Research, Tandberg, Scott, Viking, Rek-O-Kut, Artisans, Harman Kardon, James Lansing, Garrard, Marantz, Shure, Dynakit and Eico to choose from, you're already on the road to finding something you can use within your price boundaries.

A complete monophonic system can be put together for you for under $175. You may have Scott's all-in-one job at $389.95 (AM — FM radio, stereo,

Put Another Dime In

When's the last time you put a nickel in a nickelodeon? Well, it's been a long time for all of us, and in the interim, a certain degree of inflation has set in, so that now you put a dime in, not a five cent piece.

The slot for your nickelodeon dime is in the 40-year-old Seeburg Nickelodeon now grinding it out at the new gift shop called The Country Mouse at 164 Nassau. For your dime, you get "Goodnight Irene," "Darktown Strutters Ball," "Tennessee Waltz," "Dardanella," "Rockin' Bird HILL" and of all things, "Tico-Tico." This is the player-planned kind of nickelodeon, and the kiddies can watch the perforated paper make the keys move while you put out a gift for daddy.

Mommie, can you spare a dime?

amplification, everything you need except speakers).

Or you may choose the sleek planes of KLM's new FM radio with its separate speaker, each unit boxed in a walnut shadow-box about 6 by 10 inches, the tuner faced with oyster white and mottled black dials, the speaker covered with oyster cloth. A splendid radio at $139, and quite as good to look at as to hear. It has a tone control—almost unheard-of in radio. "This is the end in radios," says Audio Lab.

What else? Well, you can get a Viking stereo tape deck for $172 with amplifier ($57.50) and case, and have a light portable tape recorder to play through your hi-fi system. Or you can —Continued on Page 9

BE CALM, DEAR, IT'S ONLY A FLY ON THE CEILING: Robert Preston comforts Dorothy McGuire in "The Dark at the Top of the Stairs." The film version of the William Inge play will be featured at the Playhouse through Tuesday.

News Of The Theatres

accusities. From where this reviewer sat, at least, voices suddenly boomed out from the stage, and then retreated to flatness as the actor moved rear. The single act was sketched with simplicity and a minimum of fussiness relying chiefly on the color grey.

Mr. Hardy used, instead of a conventional curtain, a horizontal stage divider made of full-length strips of orange and rose fabric. Raised and lowered much as a regular curtain would be, it provided a touch of gaiety to the grey set. The medieval costumes were done in shades of rose, red and orange and they were designed completely but without much imagination. In fact, one of Miss Roberts' problems may have been her costume, which did not give her much chance to be alluring.

Attending these "Comedy in the Theatre" productions in McCarter can be a rather curious experience. At least on the occasions when this reviewer has been present, the theatre has been filled completely with members of the University community: faculty, administrative staff, undergraduates and graduate students. One has, in fact, the eerie feeling that one is sitting in on a seminar in the drama and that one had better not yawn lest some professor be displeased.

THE PLAYHOUSE

"The Dark at the Top of the Stairs" (October 12-18) is a respectable film adaptation, in color, of the William Inge play, featuring Dorothy McGuire, Eve Arden and Robert Preston, who shouts continually as if he were still trying to sell trombones to the people of River City and Merideth Wilton to the last halcyon. In the grabbag-of-misery style which was incited by Tennessee Williams' "Suddenly, Last Summer," the film includes two sexually disintegrated marriages, a young son who is afraid of the dark, a daughter who is terrified of boys, a Jewish cadet who commits suicide after a brush with anti-Semitism and the philosophy that all the world's problems would disappear if married couples would make love more often.

This is tripe and does not deserve your attention. It is tripe not because it is immoral—which it is not especially—but because it is inferior soap opera. It is indifferently acted and Delbert Mann's direction is perceptive only in a few scenes involving the youngsters. There is no profundity here; only a tawdry attempt to give the appearance of profundity to an inane story about insignificant people by including naive psychology and conversation about sex. And in its own self—proclaimingly adult manner, the denouement is as childish as "The Romance of Helen Trent" ever was.

"The Magnificent Seven" (October 19-25) is a lusty, widescreen, color saga of the efforts of a septet of professional American gunslingers to help a small Mexican town rid itself of domination by a crew of bandits. The stars are Yul Brynner, who is just about the worst actor in the history of motion pictures, Eli Wallach, Steve McQueen, Charles Bronson and Robert Vaughn. The film also introduces to the screen last year's Broadway matinee idol, Horst Buchholz.

When the gunmen aren't messing around with unmanly pursuits like women and gossipy philosophical jabbering about honor and courage, this is not a bad film. Unfortunately the characters seem mesmerized most of the time by young ladies (which is perhaps allowable), and tedious self-explanation (which is not). The best acting job is turned in, unsurprisingly, by Wallach, who brings real force to the role of the bandit chief. McQueen is amazingly tough as one of the American hired-guns-turned-Loch-Invarns and Brynner, who could undoubtedly turn "King Lear" into an uproarious farce if he went about it with sufficient seriousness, will make you laugh.

THE GARDEN

"The Mouse That Roared" (October 10-15) is an above-average presentation of as fine a satirical idea as the films have had in years. The plot, briefly, is this: Grand Fenwick, a European principally so tiny it makes Monaco look like the Eurasian Peninsula, is in financial straits. What better way to obtain funds, its leaders reason, than to start a war with America, lose and begin collecting foreign aid? Unfortunately, however, the rustic who has been put in charge of the 28-man army lands in Manhattan during an air-raid drill, finds the place deserted and manages to steal the super-powerful, football shaped Q-bomb, the United States ultimate weapon. Grand Fenwick has won the war and misery hangs over the fairy tale country like a cat-footed fog.

WHAT'S YOUR DISTRICT?

New Jackets at English Shop. The district check may never usurp the tartan, but it's an important factor in Scottish dress, and it has been translated from Gaelic this fall to appear in some sports jackets now available at The English Shop.

Look at Coigach, for instance. It's deep cream, navy and wine in a check you can see from here to Palmer Stadium. Or take the greyed mist of Shepherds checks with its thin blue crossing line. Each one is authentic, each jacket is woven and made in Scotland. Other jackets, similar in tone but not authentic, are quite as handsome.

British pin or chalk stripes reappear this year for the first time since dad was a lad. Come on now: when's the last time you saw a navy blue pin stripe suit? There's come also in grey or olive brown.

Colors seem to take the place of style changes in men's clothes; this year you have the district checks, the pin stripe and the Glen plaids in worsteds of olive, lava, brown or grey. Each "solid" color has trace threads of deep rust, blue, green or some other contrasting color to give a hint of lift to the apparently solid block of color.

Matching the district checks, by the way, is a collection of froon hats, also from Scotland, each one with the shape sewn in so that no amount of rough wear can bend it out of form. The English Shop likes the Cavanaugh this fall, too. It's low crowned, conservative, but pleasantly colored in snuff with a beige edging, or deep olive or taupe, depending on banker or sportsman, or for the man who's both—in the hat department.

A coat from Scotland is made of tweed lined with nylon pile against those Scotch misties. Rodex makes a soft Scotch Savony top-coat or an Irish tweed as bumpy as thick oatmeal. Our favorite is pure angora top-coat in caramel brown, very soft to the touch.

Those bulky hand-knit sweaters from Denmark continue to warm the cold Scandinavian heart. English adds this year some cable-knit Shetlands done in rough shades of charcoal, char red, char green and a faint brush of gold in the all mixed together like the tracings of color in the men's suits.

These are hand done on frames in cardigans, crew necks or v-necks. And you may have them in plain stitch rather than cable if you wish.

A new regimental stripe worsted merino is the newest member of the scarf family at The English Shop. This particular regiment likes silver grey, red and charcoal. Cashmere and wool have been mixed in authentic ancient tartan scarves, and cashmere and silk fouled have been mixed in another. Or, why not a pure cashmere, while you're at it?

News Of The Theatres

Peter Sellers, who doesn't want any chance for comparison with Alec Guinness to slip by, appears in three roles, as the bumbling farmer-general, the haughty but bawdy Queen and the smooth, oily prime minister. While he is entirely competent, Sellers fails to excite in the kind of rapturous delight that others have attributed to him during his current vogue. This is irrelevant, though, because "The Mouse That Roared" is a scriptwriter's tour de force. Without question it is the year's best political satire (How many political satires have you seen this year?) and one of the funniest pictures. In color. Recommended.

Appearing with "The Mouse That Roared" is "The Golden Fish," an intriguing if somewhat self-conscious French short, which won an Academy Award last year. There is no dialogue.

EXPRESSO BONGO

Expresso Bongo (October 17-22) is the English counterpart of "What Makes Sammy Run." Neither so gleeful as Laurence Olivier's "The Entertainer" nor so ironically witty as the original "Pal Joey," both of which also deal with the alleged rat race of show business, the film is affecting largely because of the frenetic virtuosity of Laurence Harvey (of "Room at the Top"). Harvey is the story's Sammy Glick, the fast-talking unscrupulous man behind the scenes who claws his way to the top only to find that his success is as insecure as the foundation on which it stands.

Harvey's particular glumness involves taking talented but magnetic young men and transforming them into rock-and-roll stars. His biggest find is Bongo Herbert (Cliff Richard), who makes the brash agent a rich man but ultimately deserts him for an actress (Yolande Donlan) who is as unprincipled as Harvey. Along the way the film takes some sharp, if stock, potshots at such vulnerable entertainment targets as the rock-and-roll fan, striptease nightclub acts, television, the methods of star-building and the adulation teenage fans heap on their semi-literate dreamboys. Some of the nightclub scenes, as well as the general movie atmosphere, make it doubtful that the film will instill any lastingly beneficial spiritual precepts in children; leave them home.

"PHONE-A-TION" PLANNED

For Nixon-Lodge. About 300 Princeton area residents will join in a "Phon-a-Thon" for Richard M. Nixon and Henry Cabot Lodge next weekend, October 21 through 23. Beginning Friday, 100 trained volunteers, working in three-hour shifts, will call approximately 3,500 registered voters in the Princeton area, offering a leaflet giving the facts about Nixon and Lodge and enlisting the support of all who want to give time or money toward election of the two Republican candidates.

The "Phon-a-Thon" is being staged by the Princeton Area Citizens for Nixon-Lodge, and calls will be made from the group's headquarters at 76½ Nassau Street, near Hinkson's. John R. Lasley is chairman of the Princeton Area Citizens for Nixon-Lodge, and William W. Sword is "Phon-a-Thon" chairman.

"All of us working on the 'Phon-a-Thon' believe that it is up to the voters to give the country the best possible leadership at this time, and that facts must determine the voter's choice," Mr. Sword said. "We are convinced that an objective study of the facts shows that Nixon and Lodge are the best-qualified candidates."

In an effort to get these facts to voters as soon as possible, Mr. Sword said, a crew of 200 volunteer drivers is being recruited to make immediate delivery of brochures as soon as the person called requests one. He added that various jobs on the "Phon-a-Thon," including those of callers, typists and drivers, were still open to any volunteers, regardless of party affiliation. Those interested should call WAT-unt 4-5157.

CRASH IS FATAL

To Princeton High Alumna. Cynthia Lee Holcombe, 18, of 11 Princeton Avenue, Hopewell, was killed Saturday night when the 1953 sedan she was driving apparently went out of control on Amwell Road in Hopewell and crashed into a tree on the opposite side of the road.

The accident occurred at about 7:20 p. m., as Miss Holcombe was on her way, alone, to the home of Charles Townsend, Amwell Road, where she was going to babysit. She was found lying across the front seat of the car by a passing motorist who called the Hopewell Rescue Squad. Miss Holcombe died on the way to Princeton Hospital, apparently of head injuries.

An autopsy was performed to aid in determining the cause of the accident, but final laboratory tests have not yet been made. Trooper Edwin Becker of the Hopewell State Police is investigating.

Miss Holcombe was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Holcombe, Hopewell antique dealers. A June graduate of Princeton High School, she entered Trenton Junior College in August to study art. She was a teacher at the Hopewell Methodist Church Sunday school and was active in choir and fellowship groups. She was also a member of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Hopewell Fire Department.

In addition to her parents, Miss Holcombe is survived by two sisters, a brother, and a grandmother, Mrs. Scott Dansberry, Sr. of Hopewell. The funeral was —Continued on Page 11—

JOINT LIBRARY ENDORSED. By Chamber of Commerce, Ralph S. Mason, president of the Greater Princeton Chamber of Commerce and Civic Council, has announced that his organization supports the establishment of a joint Princeton Borough - Township public library.

The Chamber gave its support after approving a report by a committee appointed several months ago to study the various aspects of joint library support, maintenance and control.

The report concluded that neither Borough nor Township could support and maintain its own adequate library. It held also that control, support and ownership should be shared since approximately equal Borough and Township populations use the present Princeton Library.

The committee contended that maintenance of separate libraries would bring about wasteful duplication of effort and noted that state aid for a combined library would be administered to each on a basis of 35 cents per capita, while state aid for separate libraries would be administered to each on the basis of five cents per capita.

at a Candidates Night to be held next Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. at Lawrence Junior High School under the auspices of the Princeton League of Women Voters and three other Leagues in Mercer County.

Freeholder candidates have been asked to speak for five minutes on the question "In what ways can county planning aid and co-ordinate municipal planning?" They may also discuss any other county problems they believe to be urgent.

Candidates for the House of Representatives will appear for 10 minutes on their party's platform and the issues which they as candidate feel are most important. There will be a question period following the talks.

Freeholders are charged with administering the business of the county. They build intra-municipal roads, build and maintain bridges and culverts, provide facilities for holding Superior County and District Courts, assume the duties involved in all elections, administer Mercer County Airport, and provide recreation facilities for the county. They also operate the county jail and sheriff's office.

TO HOLD RUMMAGE SALE

For Youth Aliyah Benefit. A rummage sale for the benefit of Youth Aliyah will be held Tuesday and Wednesday at the Princeton News Service, 266 Witherspoon Street, by the Princeton Chapter of Hadassah. Youth Aliyah is a worldwide movement that has rescued Jewish children from countries throughout the world and settled and rehabilitated them in Israel.

Mrs. Irvin Glassman and Mrs. Morton Lewin, chairman and co-chairman for the sale, have announced that the shop will be open from 9 to 8 on Tuesday and from 8 to 5 on Wednesday. Assisting the chairmen will be Mrs. Jay Brandinger, Mrs. John Darden, Mrs. William Spears, Mrs. Harry Washrop and Mrs.

Want to Make Friends?

An appeal for aid from Princeton couples who would like to help the new welcome program for foreign students has been issued by Princeton Jaycees.

Under the program, individual members of the Jaycees will contact a foreign student, invite him to their homes and try to be of assistance during the year. Since enrollment of foreign students at Princeton University exceeds the membership of the Jaycees, the group is seeking help for interested couples in the area. Those who would like to participate in the program should call Joseph L. Sionaker at Walnut 1-5315, or any other Jaycee member.

Bernard Okun, Mrs. Richard Bergman, Mrs. Herbert Gurk, Mrs. Jerome Salek and Mrs. Seymour Ader are in charge of publicity.

Those wishing to donate should call Mrs. Glassman at WA 1-6491. Hadassah members are urged to bring their donations to the service building on Monday between 9 and 2.

Faculty Poll Questioned.

To The Editor of TOWN TOPICS: Your statement in last week's TOWN TOPICS that faculty members voted for Senator Kennedy by a nearly 3 to 1 margin was somewhat surprising.

I understand 658 questionnaires were sent out; 119 answers received, of which 73 percent were Democrats or 86 professors out of 608. I believe 119 equals 18 percent, and there are 438 professors who have not expressed an opinion of their choice for President.

How one votes is a personal privilege. It is regrettable that the public, including "Old Grads," were given the impression that one party dominates the University politically.

HELEN LEE GETTY
75 South Stanworth Drive

Editor's Note: Public opinion analysis agrees that 18 percent is far more than ample to provide an accurate reflection of the opinion of any group polled. In reporting that the University faculty is predominantly Democratic, The Daily Princetonian poll (to which this letter refers) was revealing nothing new. Similar straw votes have shown such sentiment for the past quarter century.

Animal Advice

To The Editor of TOWN TOPICS: The Princeton Small Animal League is trying to reduce the large number of unwanted puppies and kittens in the Princeton area. For this reason, the League asks the owners of mixed-breed female dogs and cats, and male cats to have them spayed or altered.

The prevailing rates for spaying are approximately: For dogs, $16 to $20; cats, $15; for altering male cats, $5.

These may seem like large

I stifled a modest, "Aw, shucks, ma'am! But she was not to be put off. "Whoever arranges them ... and so reasonably?" — she persisted ... "Out with it, man!"

"Trapped, I had to confess all. "Hezekiah, ma'am!" murmured meekly. "Hezekiah," she shrieked, "who's Hezekiah?"

Drunk with power of revelation, I blushed! "Hezekiah is an unseen dwarf, ma'am. He materializes from Allen's woodwork in the wee hours and with amazing deftness, from driftwood, leaves, plants and flowers. We secrete our orders in the folds of people-watcher perched pretty atop a creation by Hezekiah."

sums, but when you consider how much nuisance and worry, as well as animal suffering, is prevented, it is really worth it. However, for those who are eager to help with this program of mercy, but cannot afford it, the League has a small fund to help them with part of the cost.

The Rescue League is a volunteer organization formed in 1901. It is partially supported by the Borough and Township of Princeton and by membership dues and gifts. It maintains a Shelter for lost, homeless and injured animals at the Lawrence Hospital for Animals on the Princeton Pike.

CONSERVE "OPEN SPACE"
Officials Urge Careful Study. The Township Planning Board is scheduled to announce shortly the names of Princeton residents appointed to serve on a sub-committee which will study the question of conserving "open space" in Princeton Township.

Appointment of the subcommittee is the next step following Township Committee's recent passage of a resolution by Committeeman Thomas P. Cook urging the Township to undertake "with vigor" a project to preserve open space in the community.

The Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association has already done preliminary work on plans to implement this resolution and has outlined five kinds of areas which the Township might consider as future "open spaces."

● First: the flood plain areas of Stony Brook, Harry's Brook and the branch of Stony Brook that crosses under The Great Road from Palmer Lake. Millstone officials believe that this is probably the most important.

● Second: land adjacent to a particularly scenic public road. For example, strips 100 yards wide might run along a road like Ridge View as butts to preserve the wooded and scenic character of the area through which the road passes.

● Third: drainage ways which could serve as play space or safe walkways to school and at the same time, provide and escape surface so that rain could sink into the ground instead of running off down the gutter.

● Fourth: areas where soil drainage is poor, wells are polluted and public water and sewer are not provided.

LET'S KEEP IT LIKE THIS: Township Committeeman Thomas P. Cook (left) and Malcolm Crooks, executive director of the Stony Brook-Millstone Watershed Association, look over a portion of the Stony Brook flood plain. Both men would like the Township to set aside areas like this as "open spaces." Story this page.

lated and public water and sewer are not provided. Watershed officials suggest that the Township buy development easements in these areas or else re-zone them so that lots would have to be even larger than they are now. Fifth: any areas peculiarly adapted to parks, preserves or historic sites. A natural woodland like the Vehlen Arboretum on Snowden Lane is one example.

Stop Developing. The Watershed Association also feels strongly that the development of certain areas in Princeton Township should be limited because of underlying rock structure. About half of the Township rests on dense, hard, slightly permeable poor water-bearing rock. The worst of this rock is the diabase that runs in a wide strip from east to west across the northern third of the Township, the Locketong shale that runs across the middle (and therefore, across much of the Borough as well) and part of the Brunswick shale that lies between the two. "It is in these areas of the Township that particular attention should be given to restricting development," say Millstone Watershed scientists.

As an example of what can happen when an area is developed, Malcolm P. Crooks, executive director of the Millstone Watersheds Association points to Harry's Brook. "Where it comes out of the woodland above the Shady Brook development," Mr. Crooks says, it flows in a channel four feet deep and four to six feet wide. Then goes under a culvert for 10 to 15 feet. "When it emerges, its channel —such as it is—measures a scant one foot in depth and one foot in width; in fact, the channel is scarcely visible at all because of silt washed into the brook while Shady Brook was still a raw development and grass had not yet begun to grow. Many house-holders have filled in the channel so that their yards would not be swamps," Mr. Crooks reports he feels that the channel must be re-opened.

Finances? "The money you save with an open space program can make the undertaking more than pay for itself," Mr. Crooks.—Continued on Page 17

The German-born artist has won a first prize and gold medal from the Corcoran Gallery, prizes from the National Academy in New York and a prize from the Carnegie Institute in Pittsburgh.

WAR DRAWINGS TO BE SHOWN
Charcoals, by Mrs. Brown, "Drawings About War," a collection of charcoal drawings by Gwyneth Brown (Mrs. Joseph Brown) will be shown for two weeks in the graphic arts section of Firestone Library on the second floor. On October 22, photographs of the drawings will be displayed in Woodrow Wilson Hall as a feature of a workshop on world affairs and disarmament. The exhibit has already been shown to the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace in New York, at Michigan State University and Swarthmore College. Other works by Mrs. Brown, including monotypes and paintings have been shown at the Library of Congress, the California State Library, the Newark Public Library's print collection and the print collection at Princeton.

Reproductions of "Drawings About War" will be available in brochure form at the University Store book and art department starting October 22. The brochure contains a forward by Pearl Buck, and will be autographed by Mrs. Brown on the first day of sale. Proceeds will go to the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom.

HISTORIAN TO SPEAK

On Ronault, Pierre Courthion, Swiss art historian and critic, will give, in French, an illustrated lecture, "Avec Rouault!" in the social sciences lounge of Firestone Library next Wednesday at 5 under the auspices of the Department of Romance Languages and Literatures at the University.

M. Courthion is the author of more than 30 books, of which the best known in the United States is the Skira publication of his two-volume "Paris Seen by Great Painters". He is currently preparing his fourth book on the 19th century realist, Courbet.

comments. The cost of sewerage and water, sidewalks, schools, curbs, school buses—the whole works—is automatically eliminated.

Mr. Crooks points out that residential development cannot sustain itself on its tax base. It can be less costly, he and Mr. Cook believe, for the Township to buy and maintain parks and other open land than to provide the municipal services which would be required if the land were sold for houses. And if easements or zoning restrictions were used to reserve open space, the costs would probably be even less.

In addition, planned open spaces which provide permanent woods, permanent open lands and permanent parks, enhance the value of adjacent lands, and thereby bring more money into the office. And Mr. Cook believes that, in a community like Princeton, many land-owners will either give easements, or give land outright when they realize how such open spaces can preserve the character of the town in which they live.

PANEL TO DISCUSS ISSUES

In 1960 Campaigns. The Princeton University Democratic Club will sponsor a 1960 Issues Conference to be held next Tuesday at 8 P.M. in Whig Hall on the University campus. The public is invited to attend.

Dr. Eric Goldman will serve as moderator of a panel consisting of Raymond F. Mole, Mayor of the Borough of Princeton and State Labor Commissioner; Dr. Charles R. Erdman, state chairman of the Republican party; Richard Frost, Democratic candidate for Township Committee and the Rev. Ernest Gordon, Dean of University Chapel.

TO DISCUSS FLOWERS

At Garden Club Meeting. "Fall Flower Arrangements" will be the theme of a meeting of the Lawrenceville Garden Club scheduled for Tuesday at 1 P.M. in the home of Mrs. James W. Rusling, 413 West State Street, Trenton.

Members have been asked to bring flowers and containers. Hostesses for the meeting will be Miss Ruth Skellenger, Mrs. H. B. Skellenger, Mrs. Edward Skellenger and Mrs. Benjamin Satterthwaite.

CASTRO THREAT DEBATED: If Castro should attempt to follow through with his threat to seize the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo, Gene LaVigne (left) believes we should "resist" and Ralph Kiebler, apert, saying we should "stay and defend it." For other comments on the bearded one's threat, see below. (Staff Photo.)

Question of the Week

Question: If Castro attempts to take over our naval base at Guantanamo, what do you feel the United States should do?

Where Asked: Around town.

Gene LaVigne, Carter Road, appliance sales and service: I think we ought to help the Cuban people a lot more than we have in the past, but I'd be very happy to see somebody else there rather than Castro and his commu-nistic friends. If he tried to take over Guantanamo, I think we should resist him all the way and show him who is boss.

Ralph Kiebler, 6 Robert Road, appliance sales and service: I think we should stay and protect our investment. We have $78 mil-lion tied up in that base. If I understand the treaty correctly, it has to be agreeable to both sides before we can be made to leave. If we want to move out, fine; but if they are trying to throw us out, then I think we should stay and defend it.

Mrs. Bradford B. Locke, Province Line Road, housewife: Stop him.

George Langer, Windsor, en-gineer: I think we should first offer to negotiate with Castro, which he is certain to refuse, and then we fight.

Mrs. Hazel Frowcher, 5 Joline Road, Kendall Park, marriage counselor: My first question would be: Why are we there? If we are there against their de-sire, then I think we should pull out.

Clive Cooper, custodian at Miss Fine's School: It all depends on what means he decides to use. I don't think the Cubans would resort to military force and, if they don't, all we have to do is point out to them that we have a treaty with them which forbids them to do any such thing. Of course, we might have to say that we'd be willing to leave someone in the future, but I don't think we would leave immediately even if we were asked to.

Mrs. Thomas B. Davinroy, 221 A Marshall Street, housewife: Send the marines in. And if it comes through international law they have to leave, I hope we leave it in the condition we found it. I feel we should tear down all the buildings, destroy all the improvements we've made and just leave them the land.

Fred M. Johnson, Wiggins Street, physicist: I think we missed our chance with Castro. We should have insisted he shave his beard off and put on a busi-ness suit. He would have said, at a complete loss, then. Seriously, I believe we ought to take pre-ventative measures now to pre-vent the possibility of this threat from happening and thus reduce it to an academic question.

Mrs. Robert Hamilton, Jr., 33 Murray Place, housewife: I think we should pull out eventually but it would first have to be care-fully thought out. I also think we should make it perfectly clear that we were doing it of our own volition and not as a result of any pressure from Castro. Actu-ally, it isn't especially valuable to us now—we just use it for a training base and we could set up a similar base elsewhere. In case of war, however, it would be of a certain value.

F. E. Morry, Mt. Lucas Road, flight navigator: Protect the base, even to the use of arms if neces-sary. Actually, I don't feel this will be a problem much longer as Castro, in my opinion, is about to go. Castro isn't going to do anything, he is just patterning himself after Nasser. I was in Egypt when Nasser went through all his histrionics, as Castro is doing now, so I speak from ex-perience.

Miss Martha Nowak, Princeton Inn, captain of the dining room: I would sit on him and I would sit on him hard.

Jayranyan Channomagan, 222-C Marshall Street, research asso-ciate for Princeton University and a native of Ceylon: I am looking at this as an outsider but I would like America to see that her treaties are maintained. There was a treaty about which the base was granted to the United States and there is an obligation on the part of Castro and his gov-ernment to honor that agree-ment. There can be no political her-mony if such agreements aren't honored.

Mrs. Hazel Keene, Carter Road, housewife: I think it would be a reckless act of aggression if Castro were to do this. If he did attempt it, I would be guided by whatever President Eisenhower, Mr. Nixon or Mr. Kennedy did. I think they would be in agree-ment on how to handle this situ-ation.

T. A. Bulmer, Princeton - Som-erville Road, retired business-man: I wouldn't let him get away with it. We have a lot of men and money invested there and it is an important base. I feel we should hang on to it.

Mrs. Arthur Mitnacht, 5 Hun Road, housewife: I don't believe we should allow Castro to take over our base. I think we should take steps necessary to prevent him from taking any more il-licities with our investments and property in Cuba.

Joseph Kovacs, 7 Park Place, Choir College employee: If it were just a matter between Cas-tro and the United States, it would be a simple matter: Cas-tro wouldn't do anything. But with the backing of Russia and with world opinion a factor in what we do with Castro, it would be very hard for us to do any-thing if he did take over the base. The European countries would have some sympathy with Castro, remembering that some American businessmen took ad-vantage of Cuba and made some unfair deals there. The Russians have and openly that if there was any military activity between us and Cuba, they would help Cas-tro shoot us down. It's only a threat, but it's serious enough.

Why Plan to Vote REPUBLICAN DEMOCRATIC

By WELLS DOORBAUGH

As a resident of Princeton Township since 1948 I am voting for the Republican candidates for the Township Committee and Tax Assessor in the coming election because I have had ample opportunity to see what these people do.

As the municipality is so highly residential in character it might be as well to start with one of the questions asked first of the candidates at most public sessions—"what about education, the schools?"

It so happens that education is not an issue in this election. By state statute in effect for many years, the Township Committee and the Board of Education are separate bodies.

The Township Committee can have nothing to do with the activities of the Board of Education whose election and meetings are things apart. My apologies to those readers already acquainted with this fact, but with the Township growing so rapidly there may be others like myself to whom this comes as news.

One of my near neighbors served on the Township Committee in recent years. The amount of time these men and women give voluntarily to this work has to be seen to be believed. And this man is not one to spend his time heedlessly.

It is one thing to spend a lot of time on something and quite another to have something to show for it. We would be correct in asking if there had been any results from the time already spent. Five of the seven pledges made a year ago have already either been accomplished or are in the hands of the appropriate agencies and on their way to being achieved.

Of the two remaining pledges one, having to do with water supply, is of necessarily a long term project, and the other awaits final legal agreement. They have not been forgotten, shelved or swept under the rug. They continue to form part of the "unfinished business" before the Committee. Meanwhile the record stands—five out of seven pledges accomplished in twelve months time!

But this is history. If the art of politics is the business of "what have you done for me lately," what of the future? What do Mr. Fairman and Mr. Healy propose for next year and the year after? I got four main points from their most recent public meetings.

1. Traffic Patterns — to work with the Borough to get agreement with the State Highway Department on what is necessary to start on the by-pass Route 202A, and to work with the Borough to do the same thing with the County on the southern portion of the "box" road.
2. Recreation Facilities — acquire the necessary land now by the most economical means possible in various parts of the Township for development as needed in the future.
3. Organization — as things stand today the Township Committee is responsible for both the policy and administration of our municipality. Further anticipated growth indicates that much if not all of the administration should be made the responsibility of an appointed officer. Such an officer is available within the framework of the already existing establishment.
4. Taxes and other financial matters — eighty percent of the Township tax revenues come from property taxes. It is estimated in the Master Plan that, at the rate of present growth, the Township — Continued on Page 22

In urging the voters to elect Richard Frost and Simon Moss to the Township Committee, I naturally think about these men as rather special people. They are not merely candidates of my party—they are possible colleagues on the Committee at the most critical juncture in the history of Township government.

Being aware of the tangled web of serious problems the Committee faces, Frost and Moss thought that I, because of my current experience on the Committee, could comment authoritatively on their candidacies in relation to the demands and opportunities of the position they seek. I do so with confidence and enthusiasm. I would like to present the case in terms of The Men, The Issue, and The Parties.

The Moss, Dick Frost and Sim Moss are eminently qualified for seats on the Township Committee. Mr. Frost brings a wealth of experience and knowledge of local and state government problems, the field in which he teaches and does research at Princeton. A Ph.D. from the famous Maxwell Graduate School of Syracuse, Dick has lectured and written extensively on his specialty of zoning and planning.

He has occupied positions of great responsibility at the state level in New Jersey, among them, member of the State Commission on Zoning and Planning, and author of the 1969 commission report on the Department of Institutions and Agencies. He served as Secretary to the Majority Leader of the N.J. Senate in 1966 and to the President of the Senate in 1969.

Mr. Moss, a lifelong resident of Princeton, is a graduate of the Princeton High School, and of Rutgers University. He holds a Masters degree from Princeton University, and has done graduate work in history at Columbia University. He has had educational administration at Rutgers.

From the early 1960's until this year, Sim was a popular and successful teacher in the Borough schools, while his wife, a member of the Township Public Assistance Board, is a teacher in the new Riverside School. He is now with the State of New Jersey engaged in highly important work on the education of migrant-labor children.

Thus both Frost and Moss are trained administrators, professionally competent in areas of great importance to local government, and intimately acquainted with the Princeton community. How the Township Committee could use such men!

The Issue. As all who follow local affairs know, Princeton Township has the full catalogue of problem areas confronting every rapidly growing suburban community: tax rates, sewers, water supply, sidewalks, streets, assessments, ad infinitum. No single one of these matters in itself presents the big issue in election; but all of them together do present the issue.

The over-riding problem of Township government is to achieve more effective organization and more efficient time-saving procedures. The issue is what make-up of the Township Committee offers greatest promise of success on this front.

Either we meet this challenge immediately, or our problems will hopelessly outstrip our capacity to cope with them — and the citizens will be driven to the outer fringes of exasperation by the snail's pace at which we make progress. The Township Committee increases the number of meetings, still rarely adjourning before midnight; appoints more boards and committees; commissions more studies — yet steadily falls behind in the race with new problems.

Things are in need of a fundamental re-ordering. But I regret to report that I see no evidence that the Republican majority detects any crisis in our affairs — Continued on Page 22 may be fully developed at the end of 15 years (1975).

 At that point we will be living in a community twice the size of today's. Unless that part of the Master Plan recommending that desirable Research (light industry) be attracted to the Township is implemented, we shall continue to see these facilities springing up on the borders of the Township but the surrounding townships will get the taxes from these firms (enabling them to better their school systems, libraries, etc.) while the taxes in our municipality will go up out of sight. The Township Committee has made a beginning on this phase of the Master Plan. The two town standing for election have made continuing this effort a major plank in their platform.
 I have not mentioned either the opposition party, their platform or their candidates. I believe them to be good in all respects. But I believe the Republicans to be better.

Democratic

 or is prepared to take the determined and concerted action that is demanded.
 The Parties, my reaction was total surprise on reading the opening statement and platform of the Republican candidates—adding up, as it does, to a claim of magnificent advances in the past and still better things waiting just around the corner.

I had great difficulty recognizing the year I had been through since last fall! (So great is my fascination with the recital of achievements and pledges, that before the campaign ends, I should like to join with Dick Frost and Sam Moss in presenting to the voters a somewhat more realistic interpretation of recent Township history, with particular attention to the origins and natural history of several of Republican platform planks.)
 When one party has had the kind of dominant position the Republicans have had on the Township Committee, there is no blinking the responsibility that goes along with it. They have had four pairs of eyes and ears and four minds (it used to be five, to anticipate situations, identify bottlenecks and discover ways to keep the collective Township Committee nose above water. But they have not risen to this opportunity.
 Indeed, the complacent tone of self-congratulation in the first release ("Princeton Township version of the national themes "peace and prosperity," "you never had it so good") is disappointing because it suggests an unwillingness to tell the voters forthrightly how serious the problems of local government have become in the Township.
 I am convinced that Richard Frost and Simon Moss, in contrast, would face this challenge squarely and would bring to this central task of Township government, the vision, the knowledge and the imagination to do something about it.

MUSIC In Princeton

TO SING FOR UNITED FUND

"Festival of Song" Scheduled. In addition to the voices of the Westminster Choir, the Columbus Boychoir, the Princeton University Glee Club, the Princeton Seminary Choir, the Nassoons, the Tigertones and the Opposite Sextette, the United Festival of Song program will present individual soloists and members of a new singing group called the Breejays.

The second annual United Festival of Song will be presented next Monday and Tuesday at 8:30 P. M. in McCarter Theatre. Tickets, at $1.50 each are available at the theatre, Princeton University Store and other stores in town. The income from ticket sales is used to cover the expense of promotional materials for the United Fund.

Soloists who will appear for the Festival are Bert Sonnenfeld, assistant professor in the language department at Princeton, who will play the baglo and sing French and Spanish songs, and Frank Janney, Princeton undergraduate, who will play the guitar and sing American folk songs.

A new group, known as the Breejays because its founder is the Rev. E. J. Anderson, will sing, and a student string quartet in company with the Princeton High School choir.

J. P. Meyer, trustee of the United Community Fund, and an active participant in the affairs of the YMCA, Boy Scouts, Chamber of Commerce and the United Nations week committee, will serve as master of ceremonies. Herbert W. Hubler is the originator of the Festival.

(Allen Ashforth, who will be the music critic for Town Topics that year, is a graduate of the Oberlin Conservatory of Music, and has received the M.A. degree from Princeton University, where he was a pupil of Roger Sessions. In past seasons he has been featured on Princeton University concert programs as a composer, and has performed with the Princeton Symphony as a harpist, chorale; at the present time he is on the staff of Princeton's $53 Million campaign.)

direction of Eugene Ormandy, placed squarely before the Princeton concert-goer one of the most critical problems of present-day orchestral concerts. There can be no doubt that American orchestras today have reached a high degree of technical skill, in terms of precision and tonal characteristics.

The Philadelphia Orchestra's playing, despite a good deal of faulty intonation in the wind section throughout the concert, demonstrated the ability to produce a rich and opulent sound. But, to the thoughtful listener, the display of such considerable abilities provokes a question: for what purposes are these abilities being used? The essential problem is one of programming.

Recently orchestral programs have been heavily criticized for the lack of variety entailed by the continual recurrence of a small body of masterpieces from the 18th and 19th Century German tradition, although there is no reason why the performance of these works should not remain an exciting experience in the concert — given a conductor who can bring real conviction to a familiar work. Whether or not Mr. Ormandy can turn this trick is something we were not allowed to discover on Monday night; his program contained only works of minor importance.

Superficially, a gesture was made in the direction of "good" programming: a work by an 18th Century composer (the "Sinfonia for Double Orchestra in D major" by J.C. Bach); a large-scale symphonic work of the 19th Century (the Schubert "Fifth Symphony"); a contemporary work (a concerto for Lukas Foss' improvising chamber ensemble and orchestra); and the inevitable orchestral showcase (the Strauss "Rosenkavalier" suite). Variety, at least, was intended. But rephrased somewhat, the program appears (and sounded) very tedious indeed: a transcription of a slightly early classical piece; the work of a minor late-romantic symphonist; a current novelty of decidedly ephemeral value; and a suite of operatic excerpts. There was not one work of real substance in this program.

When our orchestras learn to desist from heavily-chanted arrangements of works essentially conceived in a chamber music idiom? Schubert's overblown and monotonous melody (this work had less contrapuntal interest than almost any work of this reviewer can recall) is a poor substitute for a large-scale symphonic work of serious interest. One might have hoped that Lukas Foss' effort in restore improvisation to contemporary music-making would add a sense of discovery to the evening.

Unfortunately the result was no more than a sterile, full of gimmickry and faddism. Surely a community which can sponsor the performance by its own orchestra of so challenging and stimulating a work as the Sessions "Idyll of Theocritus" deserves to hear contemporary works of more substance when visited by an orchestra of such distinction. Although the Philadelphia Orchestra may not have given us an example of its most polished playing on Monday night, even the very best playing cannot save a dull program. The means of this orchestra are potentially superb; the ends toward which these means were applied are of questionable merit.

SUNDAY CONCERT

Lenox Quartet Delights. The Princeton concert season could not have opened more auspiciously than with the program given Sunday afternoon in 10 McCosh Hall by the Lenox Quartet, sponsored by the Friends of Music. This group of young but expert string players have appeared in Princeton as interpreters of contemporary music at the Princeton Seminar in Advanced Musical Studies during the past two summers, but this was the first chance a Princeton audience has had to assess their interpretation of a representative chamber music program. They acquitted themselves very well indeed.

The program itself was a model for this type of concert: a late Haydn quartet (Opus 76, No. 4 in Bb major); the Schoenberg "String Trio (1950)," which is one of the masterpieces of modern music; and a great romantic chamber work — the Schubert "Quartet in A minor, Opus 28." Considering the degree of technical skill and artistic devotion of the players, one is able to criticize their performances only on the very highest level.

Currently there seem to be two ways of performing Haydn quartets. One consists of using the music as a vehicle to present a luscious "standard quartet sound," displaying the expert tonal characteristics of the ensemble.

The other — no less expert an approach — is to approach the music as music to bring to it all the varied elements of dynamics, tone and articulation which can serve to delineate the profile of the music itself. The Lenox Quartet laudably chose the second path, and no listener who experienced the alternation of lyricism, nancy, bucolic humor and sustained vigor which their performance formance brought to the various movements of this work could fail to appreciate the merits of such an interpretation.

The Schoenberg "String Trio" is one of unparelleled difficulty in the medium; it also represents one of the pinnacles of music in this century. In terms of expression, depth and sheer musical inventiveness, it has never been surpassed.

The sense of urgency and excitement which these players brought to the opening section, and the projection of detail throughout the work, was a rare privilege for the listeners. If the sense of a larger motion during the central episodes of the piece was sometimes diffused or lost, it must be remembered that this fault has plagued many other performances of this difficult work.

The concert closed with the great minor Quartet of Schubert. Here the sense of a large movement — so essential to a regulation of chamber music of this sort — was immediately felt, almost to the extent of leaving some of the inner lines not fully characterized. The richness of tone — quite possibly caused by the extreme dryness of McCosh Hall's acoustics — hindered the overall sound of the performance, but this defect was more than compensated for by the warmth of expression which the players afforded.

Concerns of such sustained interest and technical competence are rarely heard. The Lenox Quartet and the Friends of Music at Princeton are to be congratulated.

AMATEURS TO SING:
Mozart Will Open Season. The 26th season of the Princeton Society of Musical Amateurs will begin Sunday at 8 with Mozart's Solemn Vespers and Litany. The amateurs will sing the two works with orchestra and soloists at Miss Fine's School.

The Musical Amateurs is a group composed of people who like to sing. Among its members are twopenny, undergraduates, faculty from the University, Westminster Choir College and Seminary, and residents of other communities as far away as New York and Philadelphia.

The purpose of the group is to sing and play the great choral works solely for the pleasure derived from the music. There are no public performance, no rehearsals, and no try-outs, although the soloists and members of the orchestra, some of whom are professionals, are signed up in advance.

Sunday's soloists will be Barbara Hilbish, contralto; Marjorie Holland, soprano; Robert Holland, tenor; and Woodward Waesche, bass.

Meets are held on Sunday afternoons once a month, October through May. Works to be sung this year, besides the Mozart, are: Purcell's "Dido and Aeneas," November 20; Handel's "Messiah," December 11; Chopin's "Requiem," January 8; Schubert's G Major Mass, February 12; Haydn's "Paukenmesse," March 12; Brahms' "Requiem," April 16; and Bach's B Minor Mass on May 14.

Those interested should communicate with Mrs. MacKonty Bryan, 12 South Middle Rowan Hall, Princeton University, WA 1-0453, between 2 and 5 p.m. There is a membership fee which covers the cost of the music.

BUSINESS In Princeton

NEW FIRM FORMED

To Lithoplate Field, Princeton Art Services has joined with Frederick McCell to form a new business, the Graphic Lithoplate Company, which will operate from the basement of Cox's Store at 182 Nassau Street.

The new firm will install within the next two weeks about $4,000 worth of camera and plate-burning equipment, including a Robertson "320" litho camera. With the equipment it will make aluminum plate negatives for plants, business organizations and industries which have their own offset presses. Graphic Lithoplate will process the negative, then send it back to clients who will use it on their own presses.

Graphic Lithoplate will be under exclusive contract to Addressograph Multigraph of Trenton to make all their plates and negatives. This is a one-year contract which may be renewed from year to year.

Princeton Art Services is actually an investor in the new enterprise, rather than a working partner. Mr. McCell, who is now in the printing department at Textile Research Institute and has had many years of experience selling printing, multilithing and lithographing equipment, will serve as business manager on a full-time basis.

MORE FIRMS ON HONOR ROLL

For United Fund, The United Fund Honor Roll of Princeton business firms was lengthened this week by the addition of ten organizations. Astro Electronics Division of RCA reports 340 employees' contributions, averaging $17 per employee. More than 72 percent of the contributors live outside the area served by the Princeton United Community Fund. The Family Service Association reports three employees contributing an average of $18 each and the Child Guidance Center reports three employees averaging over $51. The same average is reported by the YMCA, with five employees contributing.

At Educational Testing Service, 267 employees have given to the Fund, representing an increase of 28 percent over last year. The average contribution is $15. Nineteen employees of the Gallup organization have given an average of $10 each.

Western Electric Laboratory reports 62 employees contributing an average of $14, representing a 50 percent increase over 1959. The Gulick Agency has increased 90 percent over last year with contributions totaling $117. Eight employees at Harland W. Hoisington, Inc., have given an average of $24 for a 47 percent increase. LUNCHEONETTE OPENS

In 26 Center, Al's Luncheonette-Delicatessen, owned and operated by Al Yannes of Levittown, Pa., has opened its doors in the 206 Center opposite Princeton Airport. It will be open every day from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Six booths and a service counter with ten stools will be able to accommodate those who want to get the "best cup of coffee in town." The secret of Al's coffees stems from the use of well water plus Maxwell House's best grade of coffee. Hot and cold sandwiches of all kinds and a complete fountain service should satisfy any luncheon appetite.

At one end of the luncheonette is a delicatessen case containing various kinds of cold meat, eggs, butter, milk, cheese, and homemade potato salad. Also available will be Al's famous hoagies including regular, tuna, turkey and peanut.

Mr. Yannes previously managed a restaurant in Levittown. Before that, he owned a luncheonette in Hazleton, Pa.

BANKERS TO STUDY

In Estate-Planning Workshop, Gilbert C. Turner, vice-president and trust officer of the First National Bank of Princeton, will direct a course in estate planning under the sponsorship of the Trenton Chapter of the American Institute of Banking. The course will be given for 17 weeks starting Wednesday at the West Windsor office of the bank and will present, in addition to Mr. Turner, guest lecturers in the fields of life insurance and law. According to Archie G. Lummis, president of the Trenton chapter of the Institute, the workshop is being offered to acquaint bank employees with a subject which is growing more and more complex with the passage of time.

SPORTS

In Princeton

POLISH NEEDED
But Tiger Wins a Smile, A 29-point swing is a big one, and having achieved that in its rivalry with Pennsylvania, Princeton's football team is contemplating the future with considerably more eagerness than had been anticipated a fortnight ago. The immediate opponent is Colgate, which will provide Saturday's opposition in Palmer Stadium at 2, but already there is a tendency to look forward to the climactic portion of the Ivy League schedule.

Last fall, the third game of the season saw the Tigers take a one-sided 13-0 beating from title-bound Pennsylvania. The loss was convincing in its thoroughness, and raised considerable doubt over the ability of a veteran Princeton squad to stay in contention for the championship down to the final wire. As matters developed it did not—dropping all of its November games for the first time in more than a decade.

Last Saturday at Franklin Field, Princeton's 1960 entry achieved a 21-0 triumph over a somewhat disorganized Pennsylvania team. While the Tigers were guilty of a number of mistakes that, hopefully, are not a part of the third game of the season, their mastery of the occasion was just as convincing as their defeat was a year ago.

Accordingly, instead of being saddled with a 1-1 mark and gloom over their failure to develop, the Princetonians are 2-0 in the league standings and imbued with the belief that they have as good a shot at the 1960 title as any entry in the scrambled picture. The next big hurdle is Cornell at Ithaca a week from Saturday.

Colgate Disappointing. Same day that Princeton was losing to Rutgers, Colgate was handing Cornell a surprising 28-8 shellacking. Since then, the Red Raiders have taken a pair of solid beatings themselves: 39-22 from Lehigh and 49-12 from Rutgers.

Both Lehigh and Rutgers are unbeaten, with the game between them on October 22 very possibly determining which will go on to finish 9 and 6, Colgate, therefore, has lost to a couple of better than average teams but the 38 points it has yielded in two games reveal a major defensive weakness.

The New Yorkers' difficulty lies at the tackle and end positions, plus the fact that its squad is relatively light without being fast. Princeton's impressive blocking ability blended with the skill that tailbacks Jack Sullivan and Hoph Scott show in using their interference should keep the Tigers running steadily off tackle and around the flanks on Saturday.

Ever since its two fine teams of the mid-fifties, Colgate has had scant success in Palmer Stadium. It did upset Princeton in 1967, 12-10, but in the last two years has been beaten, 40-13 and 42-7. Saturday's score should be in the same bracket.

Caldwell used to say, "I can tell you in the first five minutes which team is likely to win a football game." What he based such thinking on, of course, was line play—which team was hitting harder and doing a better job of dominating the action up front. It was apparent at Franklin Field Saturday, well inside that five-minute period, that the Tigers were to have all the better of the line play. Throughout the afternoon, mistakes such as four fumbles and several costly penalties kept hobbling the Princeton attack but it was actually

Princeton End

In its first two Ivy League games this season, Princeton has allowed an average of just 44.5 yards rushing and has not yielded a point. There are a number of reasons for this surprisingly stout defense but one of the biggest is the stand-out end play being contributed by senior Jim Blair, who was the "lineman of the day" nomination Saturday at Philadelphia.

yards apiece. This year, he already has five for 50 yards and one touchdown. He is one of the first downfield on punt coverage and a highly-dependable tackler.

When the season began, end was one of the positions listed as a Princeton weakness—because Blair was the lone returning letterman. In typical fashion, Cappy Cappone, who tutors candidates for this position, has brought his particular players along so well that the weakness no longer exists. At last Sunday's post-game Dick Colman paid special tribute to Cappy, and to Blair's three-game performance.

No team ever won a championship with mediocre end play. If Princeton is to confound the critics and make a bid that lasts into November for the Ivy title, the calibre of play that Jim Blair is contributing will have much to do with such success.

Sports In Princeton

not much more than a question of what the Tigers' eventual margin would be.

The running game sputtered throughout the first quarter, a drive in the closing minutes reaching the five with a first down and then failing to make the necessary yardage. The usually dependable wedge play failed, very possibly because Penn, under John Slierman, was virtually certain it was coming twice in a row.

The offense then provided seven points in each of the last three quarters, each TD being capped in authoritative fashion by place-kicking specialist Dave Goodin. He has made five of six attempts, is booting his kickoffs deep and appears to be a major asset in this department for the next three years.

A 53-yard march with Sullivan chewing up most of the distance produced the first score at 6:18 of the second period. Mike Iseman threw a reverse pass from six yards out to sophomore end Barry Schuman, who was behind the Penn secondary in the end zone.

The Quakers' fairly steady string of errors hit a peak in the third quarter to give Princeton its second score. A high snap from center was fumbled in punt formation, the Tigers' John Craig recovering on the looser's three. Sullivan pounded right tackle twice to go into the end zone.

Scott Sparks Drive, Hugh Scott was the talkback on the final drive, one that needed only nine plays to go 49 yards in the final quarter. The wedge worked this time, Krummurt diving into the end zone at 8:28.

Penn's deepest penetration came in the second quarter and carried to the Tigers' eight. On fourth down, Ed Shaw passed from the talkback slot, sophomore Dan Terpack picking it off five yards inside the end zone for a valuable interception. He ran it out 23 yards and with one more block would have gone all the way for a 106-yard TD. Just 20 years ago, Bob Jackson, another fast, small Tiger back, grabbed a Penn fumble in mid-air and ran 98 yards on Franklin Field to a Princeton touchdown.

In better shape physically than they have been in mid-October for a full decade, the Tigers have accomplished more than was expected of them to date on a basis of two achievements: solid line play and, in Dick Colman's word, "real hustle and real desire." Both were missing a year ago. Elsewhere in the league, no team is head and shoulders above

The rest, and it is quite likely that a 4-1 mark will be good enough to win the title. Two entries generally picked for second division when the firing began—Princeton and Dartmouth—have given the most impressive performances to date.

Three of the eight Ivies, defending champion Penn, Columbia and Brown, are already out of the running. Unlikely to make a stretch run for it, with its two top backs, Marcy Tino and Dave McKelvey, out for the season, and with questionable defensive ability at Cornell, despite its opening victory over Harvard.

That shakes the list down to four—the Big Three, plus Dartmouth. Since Dartmouth meets both Harvard and Yale this month, Princeton victories over Cornell and Brown would leave the Tigers in top position to make a stretch run during November. This in itself is far more than had been anticipated when the season began.

TIE BREAKER: Allen Wood, Iron man wingback for the Little Tigers, scored the winning touchdown against Middletown Township with less than two minutes to play after taking a pass from teammate Russ Perone. The son of PHS's offensive line coach, Dick Wang, the six foot, 195 lb. senior has played virtually every minute of Princeton High's games to date. (Staff Photo.)

THE FIGHT BEGINS
For Mercer County Crown, No trophy is ever awarded to the winner of the mythical Mercer County crown. But the fact that every high school in the county does not play every other does not prevent them from arriving at a mythical winner every season, an honor as dearly sought as any Ivy or Big Ten championship.

The present holder of the title is Princeton High. The Little Tigers will begin defense of the crown Friday afternoon at 2:15 against the invading Tornadoes of Trenton High. Long on tradition, a PHS-THS clash is always a hotly-contested game in which past performances are meaningless.

Consider this: Two years ago, an undefeated PHS team, which had won its first three games, as have the Little Tigers this year, evenly took on a winless Trenton eleven. Trenton won. Even more memorable and just as disastrous was last year's battle.

A slightly favored Red and Black squad found itself behind, 12-6, with only 15 seconds remaining and Princeton in possession of the ball on its own 20. All PHS had to do to win the game was snap the ball and fall down. Instead, Jack Hawkins, star tailback for the Blue and White, tried to run, was hit, and fumbled. Before the stunned Little Tigers could fall on the loose ball, a speedy THS back scooped it up and dashed over with the TD that made it a 12-12 final.

This fall, after losing their first two games, Coach Pat Clemons Tornadoes scored a safety in the last period Saturday to shade Thomas Jefferson High School, 9-7 and are now hoping to make it two in a row with a victory over PHS. The Little Tigers, aiming to remain undefeated, may be minus the services of starting fullback Howard Gould who was injured in the Middletown Township game Friday. As in the past, both teams will probably develop one or two "surprises" to spring on the other in an all-out effort to win this "must" game.

Showing the class and determination of a champion, the Little Tigers came from behind with less than three minutes to play to break a 6-6 tie and earn a 13-7 victory over Middletown Township Friday at Harris Field. The last-minute victory enabled the Blue and White to remain unbeaten, untied, and, as one little PHS follower said at the end of the game, "un-extra-pointed-on." (None of the four TDs scored against PHS this season has been followed by a successful PAT.) Princeton High scored the only touchdown in the first half of the game in the second quarter, driving 73 yards in 14 plays for the score. Middletown duplicated this effort, late in the fourth quarter when it ground out a 75-yard march along the ground to knot the score and set the stage for a dramatic PHS rally. It came four plays later.

Pemberton Scores. On the next to last play in the opening quarter, Sigvard Peterson recovered the ball when Floyd Lodge, Middletown back, fumbled on his own 27. Co-captain Russ Perone, Gil Fisher and Bob Salter moved the ball to seven-yard stripe for a first down and goal to go. From here, in two thrusts, 150-lb. Charles Pemberton, replacing Howard Gould who was injured midway in the drive, went over. Pemberton's try for the PAT failed.

After the visitors scored, only two minutes and 50 seconds were left when Russ Perone returned the kick-off on a fine run to tie the PHS 4-6. He followed with a 30-yard gallop around left end to the Middletown 24. Fisher lost five but a personal foul against the visitors on the next play carried the ball to the 13. Perone then hit his favorite target, wingback Allen Wood with a running pass out in the flat where Wood hauled it in on the five and scampered over for the TD. Fisher successfully ran the PAT.

Much of the credit for the victory belongs to Wood who is used on both offense and defense, and has played more minutes than any PHS other player. He has also caught more and intercepted more passes than any Little Tiger. In the opening game against Psidie he recovered three fumbles and his hands on play is one reason why the Little Tigers remain undefeated.

LAWRENCEVILLE WINS
Tops Andover for 16th in Row. Frank Bunch, a fine tailback, was the difference Saturday as Lawrenceville came from behind to defeat Andover, 14 to 8. The Red and Black's victory, scored on its home field before some 2,500 spectators, was its 16th straight over three seasons.

Paced by Bunch's powerful end sweeps, the Larries rolled 56 yards for a touchdown the first time they got the ball. Bunch circled left end from 18 yards out for the score, but a pass for a two-point conversion failed.

The New England prep school took the second-half kickoff and marched 66 yards to go into the lead. Quarterback Tone Grant carried on both the touchdown and the end run that made it 8-6 for the Blue.

Lawrenceville drove 67 yards for the winning TD, its single wing power plays gaining ground consistently. Bunch again got the six points, and then took a pass from Bruce Robertson for the final two.

Andover picked up 15 first downs and 267 yards on the ground but was unable to complete one of its seven passes. For Lawrenceville, the figures showed 263 yards rushing and 39 more from two of five completed aerials.

The series will continue next year, when Lawrenceville travels —Continued on Page 31

HUN REBOUNDS

Blanka Perkiomen to Win 1st.
How much do comparative scores mean?

The Hun School football team, which lost to Pennington in its opener, will be hoping they don't mean a thing as it travels to Philadelphia Friday afternoon to meet Germanstown Friends, a team that edged Pennington last week.
14-12. With the exception of last year, when Hun routed the Quakers 32-0, a Hun-Friends contest has always resulted in a close, hard-fought game with one touchdown usually the difference.

Before a crowd described by Hun football game as "long time,"
"one of the largest to witness a Hun football game in a long time."
The Red and Black bounced back from its opening game loss to shut out a visiting Perkiomen eleven, 28-0. Hun scored twice in the opening quarter on runs of 20 and 15 yards by junior halfback Gary Grover and again in the third period on a 12-yard carry by fullback Al Landis. Its final tally came in the fourth quarter on a seven-yard aerial from reserve back Doug Kirk to Dave Pitcock, a reserve end.

"We didn't do anything different than we did against Pennington, we just spent the week polishing up our game and, this time it worked," said Waterman.
Work it did. Burnished to a fine degree of polish, the Hun attack erupted for a touchdown the first time the home team had possession.

Grover Scores Twice. Following the opening kick-off, Gary Grover and Al Landis, alternating on carries, moved the ball to the enemy 20 from where Grover burst over tackle for the six-pointer. Quarterback Tim Walsh ran the ball over for two more points to put Hun in front, 8-0.
Moments later a Grover to Landis pass covering 20 yards set up Hun's second TD. Again Grover ran the final yards, 15 this time, to up the score to 14-0. This time the PAT fizzled.

In the second half, Hun which failed to complete one pass in its opener, struck through the air.
A 40-yard pitch, Grover to end Jey Maynell, carried to the looers' 12 to set up Hun's third score.
A seven-yard pass accounted for the Red and Black's final touchdown in the fourth period. None of its aerials was intercepted this time.

CASUALTY: Sore ribs may keep Princeton center and linebacker Jerry Sullivan out of action against Colgate this weekend.

Line Play Escapes. The Hun line, in sharp contrast with its play last week, outcharged and outplayed Perkiomen throughout the game. Led by the three Sovidge brothers, Pete, Paul and Dave, the Hun forward wall never allowed the visitors to record two first downs in a row. They rushed the Perkiomen passer so effectively that he was never a factor in the game and they tackled hard, causing the opposition ball carriers to fumble on numerous occasions.

"It was," said Waterman, "a good team effort all the way. We forced them to make a lot of mistakes."

TOMLINSON WINS AGAIN

In Sunday Dinghy Racing, Henry Tomlinson won the Carnegie Sailing Club's Penguin Race last weekend for the second Sunday in a row. He finished first only in the second race of the series of three, but his 28.1 points overall provided a clear margin of victory.

Trailing, in order, were Carl Olson, 22.3 points; John Bernard, 21.7; Pat Curtis, 20.8; Phil Holt, 19.4; John Reeder, 16; Tom Huntington, 14; Bob Wilson, 13; Ted Kelly, 8; and Walt Jefferson, 5.

BOWLING NOTES

Nelson Glas Tops "A" Loop.
Nelson Glas won three games broke out of a three-way tie to with 16 points each, three games behind the leader. Walker Gordon (28) increased his margin to three games over Edwards Engraving and Sportsman No. 1 in the "B" loop.

In the Women's League, Nassau Bootery held on to its two-point margin over Amron Homes and Hits and Misses shared the third position with 20 points each. Decker's Dairy continued to pace the Women's Industrial League with 36 points, followed by Nassau Service and Princeton Motor Lodge, each only one game out of first.

Bill Bathie posted the top individual score of the week with a 223 in the "A" League. Other high games included Bill Dumble, 218-203; and Vince Gregg, 206.

Report from THE MAYOR

Realistic Speed The State Traffic Safety Bureau has asked the Borough to increase the speed limits for vehicles traveling on Mercer Street. The answer of our own Safety Committee — a response "No."

Traffic engineers have adopted a theory that the rate traveled by most cars under ideal conditions is the "realistic" speed limit. This theory has, among other deficiencies, the false assumption that streets exist for the most rapid vehicle flow.

Our Safety Committee still feels, as does the Mayor, that pedestrians, too, have rights — and that the few moments "saved" in driving through residential areas are not worth the price. We may be accused of being a "slow" town, but we still slow down to a more reasonable pace, we can all better enjoy this most beautiful community.

The Safety Committee recommendations will be presented to Borough Council for its action. We hope that the Council will agree that, in Princeton, people should be more important than automobiles!

Zoning for Aesthetics. Among the many suggestions listed out at the Planning Board by our consultant planner, Dodd McHugh, is a proposal for a form of zoning that would conform itself with the character of buildings and landscaping in certain areas of the Borough. In some ways, this would be an attempt to make official the kind of thing done so conscientiously over the past several years by Operation Nassau. McHugh suggested a Board of Review to consider such items as removal of historical buildings and valuable trees.

Interested Observers. The Greater Princeton Chamber of Commerce and Civic Council has recently appointed a standing Committee to study and report on zoning and planning meetings; the Chamber's Ed Cook was on hand for last Tuesday's Planning Board meeting. The business community has a large stake in these problems, and it should be helpful to have them taking an active interest.

On the Calendar. In addition to the regular agenda meeting of Council and the Planning Board, last week's schedule included conferences on United Nations Week plans; a meeting with Township Mayor Fairman, President Govehen, and other University representatives concerning the bypass; and a session at the New Jersey Citizenship Conference at Rider College.

Open House. Regular weekly "Tell it to the Mayor!" sessions will be held on Thursday, October 13, and Thursday, October 20, from 7 P.M. to 10 P.M. at Borough Hall. No appointment is ever necessary for these informal sessions.

GIFTS SOUGHT

By Wellesley College Alumnae. Three hundred Wellesley College Alumnae in Central New Jersey are taking part in a "Personal Call Program" that began Monday. It was announced by Mrs. William Bullock of 116 Clover Lane, district fund chairman for Wellesley. The event is part of a similar nation-wide program.

A goal of $15,000.00 is being sought to be used for faculty salary advancement. Last year more than $2,300,000 was received, the largest amount in a single year since the goal was announced.

In arranging the program, Mrs. Bullock has received close cooperation from co-chairman Mrs. Donald Griffin and Mrs. Hallett Johnson, Jr. of Princeton; Mrs. Gerrish Thurber of Lawrenceville, club president; and Mrs. Henry Broad, community chairman of Princeton. Callers for the Princeton area include: Mrs. Bernard Borenholz, Mrs. Everett Garrison, Mrs. Walter G. Gibson, Mrs. Frank Gorman, Mrs. Donald W. Griffin, Mrs. John Gulick, Mrs. G. H. WAGE PROGRAM REVISED

At Princeton Hospital. Princeton Hospital this week announced a major revision of its wage and salary administration program. The revision is based on a 18-month period of research by members of the administrative staff.

Under the new program, 82 jobs with 54 individual starting salaries have been classified into 13 job grade ratings and 13 starting salaries. A point rating system was designed to rate jobs individually considering 11 factors in the areas of education, skill, effort, responsibility and job conditions.

Each of the 13 job grades has a minimum and maximum salary scale and a schedule of increments over a 3-year period has been established.

The revised program also includes an employee rating system which permits rating each employee's performance against his job. Merit salary increments are granted on this basis.

The total program has been placed in book form, copyrighted, and may be published. The Board of Trustees has approved the program and authorized its immediate implementation.

WEST END

TURN-OF-THE-CENTURY HOME

If you looked at the price first and pondered what's wrong with the house, we'll try to right away that it is a lot of redecoration. With that done, you'll have a roomy, comfortable home with that rather special turn-of-the-century charm. 13 rooms, 2 bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths, 3 fireplaces, big double windows, high ceilings, an area of the space plus appealing details. Add to that a big lot with an old tree and a well-kept pool and a close-by school and you'll find the work to be done. It's an unusual West End find at an asking price of $17,500.
